Guidelines for Publications from Thesis Research

Suitable for Completion of Ph.D. Degree

2006

According to the Regulations for Graduate Study at Mahidol University (2006) indicating that graduation with doctoral degree requires that the thesis research work or part of the thesis research work should be published or be accepted for publication in an international peer-reviewed academic journal, the Faculty of Graduate Studies has established the following guidelines to ensure that doctoral students of all degree programs will abide by the same standards for publication of thesis research work for requesting approval for completion of the doctoral degree.

1. Research Article

Research articles from doctoral research must be research articles and must be published in a peer-reviewed academic journal.

Articles in the category of Meta-analysis Articles, Peer-reviewed Conference Papers, or Original Articles involving social science research, having systematic research protocols, and resulting in new knowledge, or publications in the form of Monograph or Book Series must be submitted for approval by the Committee for Evaluating Publications of Thesis Research for Completion of the Doctoral Degree.

2. Journals for Publication

2.1 Journals used for publishing thesis research, which are peer-reviewed international academic journals, listed in approved international databases, do not require prior approval by the Committee for Evaluating Publications of Thesis Research for Completion of the Doctoral Degree.

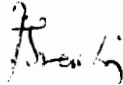

2.2 Journals requiring approval by the Committee for Evaluating Publications of Thesis Research for Completion of the Doctoral Degree should have the following characteristics:

2.2.1 Journal published in Thailand or elsewhere, which are not listed in approved international databases or journals listed in international databases but are not peer-reviewed inform the Faculty of Graduate Studies when the article has been accepted for publication, so that the requirement for publication will be considered fulfilled.

This announcement takes effect from the 2006 academic year.

Announced on May 17, 2006
